

Dear FCC,

I object to the Sinclair Group using public airwaves to show a pseudo-documentary that is intended to help re-elect George Bush by discrediting John Kerry's involvement with the Vietnam antiwar movement in the late 1960s. It isn't a news program and they shouldn't be allowed to call it one. It should be considered a campaign contribution and they should have to give equal time to a pro-Kerry program. I suggest they consider screening "Going Upriver: The Long war of John Kerry", an excellent documentary on the same subject that is genuinely thoughtful and informative. That would be the fairest way for them to demonstrate their integrity and their responsible stewardship of airwaves that belong to the American public. If they persist with this obnoxious plan then their license renewal should be denied. Thank you.
